Check Out OIG's Ongoing Projects, Upcoming Reports

The Office of Inspector General (OIG), Department of Homeland Security (DHS), is offering the public an advance “heads up” on future reports with the new “Ongoing Projects” feature on its public website (www.oig.dhs.gov).

The Ongoing Projects list contains working titles, basic objectives and the DHS agency involved, for dozens of undertakings that are under way in the OIG offices of Audits, Inspections, Emergency Management Oversight and Information Technology Audits. Report release dates for the projects are to be determined.

“It’s important that all of our stakeholders, especially the public, be aware of the focus and nature of the work we are doing on their behalf,” said Inspector General John Roth. “In our work, we stress the need for transparency by all of the DHS components we oversee. I expect nothing less from our office.”
